Let's Focus on Faucets – It may seem like a relatively small item, however, a faucet is used every day and this decision may have a big impact on your kitchen.

Consider texture and color, ease of use and functionality before making this purchase. Some options include single-handle or double-handle faucets or sprayers. With sprayers, there are pull-out, pull down or side-mounted options.

These offer the flexibility of target spraying with maximum water pressure and convenience. Spouts come in a variety of styles and heights so consider the reach. Ideally, it should reach the center of the sink. Gooseneck or high-arc spouts are taller and allow you to slide large pots and trays into the sink. Wall-mounted faucets save counter space, however, are more costly to install. Touch-free faucets are available and help eliminate cross-contamination.

What's the Right Faucet Finish?

Consider coordinating the surface coating with décor, cabinet hardware, lighting and appliances.

--Chrome is available in polished or brushed. It's durable and it's an easy to clean finish.

--Stainless steel is like chrome and it's available in polished, brushed or matte and is durable and easy to clean.

--Nickel units with titanium finish are more resistant to scratching and tarnishing.

--Brass is ideal for a traditional style and may have a high gloss, satin or antique finish. Solid brass models tend to be expensive.

--Oil-rubbed bronze has a burnished finish and offers an out-of-the ordinary look.
